INSTRUCTOR BIO

I am an economics instructor with more than two decades of experience. My research interests are in the fields of environmental economics and more recently, in how to teach economics. I have worked on topics related to air quality, climate change, urban transportation, and biodiversity conservation. I am passionate about building understanding in a diverse environment. I am also an avid (but aging) runner, so when I am not injured, I run every day.

Term Start: Aug 29 2022

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course introduces you to the principles of statistical reasoning and inference. To this end, the ultimate goals of the course are for you to thoroughly understand the following concepts: sampling distributions, hypothesis testing, and confidence intervals across multiple settings.

Organized into fourteen modules, the course is divided into four parts. The first part of the course provides an overview of how data is properly collected and how to explore data using visual and numerical methods. The second part is an introduction to probability theory, discrete and continuous probability distributions and mathematical expectation. The third part introduces sampling distributions, confidence intervals and hypothesis testing. Finally, the last section applies statistical inference to population means, to proportions and to simple regressions.

Course Website <https://canvas.colorado.edu/> (Canvas) Grades and any further additional readings will be posted on Canvas. Please check Canvas frequently for any relevant notifications/changes that may occur throughout the course.

SUPPLEMENTAL MATERIAL

You will use R, a free statistical package to conduct statistical analysis.

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODOLOGY AND DELIVERY

This course is delivered via distance education format using the Canvas system. This format will use a combination of readings, online discussion, and other web-based resources. You will interact with the instructor and other students using the communication functions provided by Canvas. You will submit assignments in accordance with the course outline using Canvas. You will also have access to Achieve

EVALUATION AND GRADING

Course grades will be determined by the completion of assignments, exams, and

ASSIGNMENTS

(200 POINTS) There will be a 20 point exercise associated with most modules.

- x Problem Sets consist of quantitative questions where you will complete questions while showing your work. Problem sets will be graded.
- x Your lowest one (1) Problem Set will be dropped from your final grade calculation.

TUTORING

The Economics Department provides a free drop-in tutorial office which offers assistance on all core courses in the major, and occasionally on other undergraduate courses in the Department. Its website is <https://www.colorado.edu/economics/node/513/attachment>

The Economics Department maintains a list of tutors who are available for private hire. Its website is <https://www.colorado.edu/economics/node/515/attachment>
